

JUDY BLUMENTHAL

Hello, my name is Judy Blumenthal. I am a passionate, driven and curious Early Childhood Educator from New York, and I have always believed that quality education is a human right and should be offered to all our citizens. I am a graduate of Bank Street College of Education, and before that was a student at Eastern Michigan University. Play as a form of learning is the key to a successful classroom, and inquiry-based education should exist in every school. I have always been curious to learn more about educational policy and to be an advocate for all children, families and teachers.
